NO TIME FOR DALLYING.

But three days remain for completing the count of the Electoral votes, and the incessant and frivolous delays by which the Democrats have thus far obstructed progress, show the fallacy of relying upon their promises that bear no fruit. Four States remain to be counted and we are warned that a contest will be made over the very last on the list. While a portion of the Democrats have talked plausibly more and more time has been wasted by more and more frivolous and inexcusable delays, until the suspicion is strongly aroused that a deep game of deception is being practised, and that the Republicans are in danger of being led into a trap. There is no time to be wasted in dallying, for there is not the shadow of excuse for the further delay of an hour in completing the count of the Electoral votes. The count has been declared up to Vermont and there is not a pretext for delaying the declaration of that State and Wisconsin for Hayes and the two Virginias for Tilden, which completes the roll of States. With the House given over to madness and folly the people look to the Senate and its Presiding Officer to enforce the mandates of the Constitution and avert threatened anarchy.—Compromising with revolutionists has already been carried beyond the verge of safety, and every public interest now demands prompt and decisive action.

THE CLAIMANT

[From the N. Y. Tribune.]

The Democratic pretender ought to be a good deal discouraged, but he does not give up. He has gone all through the Electoral Colleges, asking for recognition and he cannot get it. He spent a large sum of money on Cronin, and Cronin is discarded unanimously. Now he purposes, after the failure of bribery and bluster, to try a suit at law. He asks for a special Act of Congress to give him a standing in court, with particular provisions to enable him to choose his own judge and select his own jury. With these advantages he promises a new Tichborne trial surpassing in length the celebrated case which in its two branches, civil and criminal, engrossed the English courts for nearly three hundred days. What a stupendous suit he would make of it, and how he would revel in its complexities and delays! Having first tied up the estate, so to speak, with claims and injunctions and all manner of unpleasant chancery devices, he would proceed at leisure to unroll the endless length of his case, and call from the remotest parts of the continent the array of his witnesses. The Gobbles and Patricks, and drunken returning board clerks, and chivalrous friends of the "Confederate widows and orphans," and all the other conspirators enlisted in this plot for the possession of the White House would come upon the stand and tell their remarkable stories, and it would be strange if the ingenuity that manufactured the Oregon Democratic electoral college did not arrange for them a plausible and consistent narrative. Perhaps we might have the Claimant, himself in the box, and if he did not satisfy the jury that he was the genuine President he would at least not fail to fix for a while the attention of the universe. As the original Tichborne raised funds for the prosecution of his fraud by the issue of bonds payable out of the estates, when he should get them, so his American imitator might provide for witnesses and lawyers by a judicious appropriation of the prospective political plunder, and if they missed their reward after all they would not be the first of their kind who were disappointed.

Our Tichborne has his Dr Kenealy already. That eminent member of the British bar, whose affronts to the bench and insults to witnesses enlivened the slow progress of the great trial, has never had a closer imitator than the claimant's attorney who is now rampaging about Washington, denouncing the rightful heir and brandishing his quo warranto bill in the face of Congress. Mr. Field has all the violence of speech and demeanor, all the bull-dog pertinacity, all the fondness for excessively sharp practice, all the strange penchant for bad causes and disreputable clients which made his English model conspicuous. The fat Roger and the slim Samuel seem to have been equally served by a barrister in the bludgeon style, who attacks like a prize-fighter, and drags a case through the courts with clatter and uproar; whose arguments are an outrage upon reason, and whose practice is a monument of professional impudence. But Dr. Kenealey would not do in the English Court of Common Pleas, and Mr. Field, we fear, will hardly do in Washington. The methods of the Tweed case will never get a claimant into the White House. When the conspiracy has fallen through, and the pretender has sunk into obscurity, when the perjuries have been found out, the false witnesses convicted, the whole apparatus of deception been uncovered. It will be lucky for the roaring attorney if it do not prove that he has been identified rather too closely with his client, and that they have both fallen together. What a pity it would be if the American, like the English Kenealey, having lost his place at the bar by doing too much for a bad case, should take to the trade of a demagogue for a living.

POLITICAL AND PERSONAL.

Ex-Gov. Hendricks has one advantage over Mr. Tilden. He is not out of office, having been appointed by the Indiana Legislature a delegate to the International Prison Congress at Stockholm, Europe.

Mr. Pelton's paper, drawn "contingent on result in March," is not much sought for by investors. Gobble bonds, in cipher, are quoted a few notches below zero.

Gov. Hayes should send that knife to the editor of The Washington Capital. The sight of it would cause that valorous warrior to put several hundred miles between himself and Washington.

Mr. Yeates of North Carolina discerns the difference between valor and vapor. Those 15-inch shells seem to have educated the perceptive faculties of many Southern gentlemen besides Mr. Hill.

Thomas Winans of Baltimore, who is an invalid, has great confidence in the efficacy of the sun's rays. He has a coupe with a glass cover, and a large rink covered with glass for horse-riding.

THE LOUISIANA REPORTS.

The telegraphic reports, alleging expressions of sympathy by President Grant for the Nicholls faction in Louisiana, and that he intends taking measures in their favor, have a very fishy appearance and are rendered more improbable by the accompanying story of a political bargain for a division of offices in that State. The President but recently declared that he should do nothing to hamper the Southern policy of his successor, and such action as is now imputed to him is in direct conflict with that declaration. We cannot credit the report that the President has made the statements imputed to him, for every message of his Administration has enforced the doctrine that it is the bounden duty of the Government to afford protection to the loyal white and enfranchised colored people of the South. The President has sustained the Republican Government of Louisiana throughout his two terms, during all of which time Marshal Packard has been the principal Federal representative in that State. It would be a remarkable thing for the Executive who has unfalteringly sustained Governor Kellogg, to take occasion at the very close of his Presidential term to attempt to repudiate Governor Packard, whose election has been declared by the Returning Board which the Joint Commission has just decided to be unquestionably authorized by the laws of the State to declare the result of elections. If there is any truth in these stories we can conceive of no other explanation for the remarkable course they indicate than the malign influence of Senator Conkling, whose name has recently been very damagingly connected with stories of Democratic intrigue in Washington. We shall refuse to believe that the President has taken the course attributed to him until we have it from perfectly authentic sources.

As for Governor Hayes being a party to any such arrangements, the stories are not entitled to the slightest credence. Gov. Hayes has not given the shadow of an assurance or a pledge as to his course with reference to the disputed Governorships, and will not until he acts upon the case officially. The present multiplication of rumors and inventions is designed by Democratic scamps simply to create a belief that has no foundation in order that they may use them hereafter to bring charges of bad faith if President Hayes acts contrary to their wishes. In that event he has now industriously circulated will be cited as facts, and the blatherskites of such fellows as Burke will be quoted as representing assurances from Governor Hayes! He has given no such assurances or intimations to anybody.

COMPLETING THE COUNT

WHAT THE SENATE WILL DO IN CASE OF OBSTRUCTION BY THE HOUSE.

[Wash. Cor N Y Tribune]

Whatever contingency may arise in the count, whether it goes as far as Wisconsin or not, the Republicans have still a sheet-anchor to windward. If the execution of the Electoral law is impeded the President of the Senate will open the certificates and the votes will then be counted. All Republicans favor this plan and regard it as the unfailing remedy for the tricks, violence and bad faith of the embittered, unscrupulous, and crack-brained minority in the House. Is it constitutional? In the highest sense, yes. It provides for executing the Constitution and secures the defeat of the plot for nullifying the provisions of that instrument in regard to the election of President. The prime object of the organic law is to maintain a stable, continuous Government, and thereby to insure the country against anarchy. No proper interpretation would put such a construction upon the instrument as would deprive the country of all safeguard against the success of a conspiracy seeking to create confusion. It is absurd to argue that the Constitution left a wide door open through which discord and anarchy were to stalk hand in hand. The Constitution provides for the orderly election of a President, and carries forward the process of ascertaining the result with care and precision by mandatory requirement so as to secure a result with absolute certainty before the 4th of March. It contemplates no interregnum. It sanctions no methods for defeating the regular consummation of the electoral count. Upon one man is placed the duty of opening all the certificates. A failure of either House of Congress to perform its duty in the premises does not excuse the President of the Senate from doing what he is imperatively commanded to do. As soon as the House refuses to meet the Senate to proceed with the count or adopts a policy of delay manifestly intended to defeat the declaration of the result, he will be warranted in giving notice that at an hour named he will open the remaining certificates in his custody. It may be said that this would be a violation of the new Electoral law. It would only be a departure from the letter of the law to carry out its spirit, and its justification would be in the fact that the House had previously violated both the letter and the spirit of the law, and had wholly nullified it and rendered its further operation impossible. The law being thus set aside, the duty of the President of the Senate to fall back upon the Constitution would be evident. The course proposed would then be constitutional, because it would execute the Constitution, preserve the Government, and avert anarchy.

A further question arises. Is it feasible? I believe it is entirely so, and this appears to be the opinion of all leading Republicans. It may be objected that the Democrats in the Senate could prevent the opening of the certificates by introducing a resolution restraining the presiding officer and then talking upon it until noon on the 4th of March. The answer is that the President would not receive such a resolution, and would not recognize any Senator to consume time by speech-making. The obligations of the Constitution would be superior to the rules of the Senate. The first and only thing in order he would hold to be the opening of the certificates. All the machinery of the count would be in operation. The two tellers formerly appointed by the Senate would take their places at the desk and produce the tally-sheet ready for the final entries. The unopened certificates, safely guarded since the count began, would only need to be taken from the boxes and the seals broken. It could not be objected that the President assumed to count them without right, for he would not count them; he would only do as he has done with those already counted—hand them to the tellers, who would read them and enter the votes on the tally-sheet. Nor would the proceeding take place in the presence of the Senate alone, for all the Republican members of the House and many of the Democrats would come over to lend the sanction of their presence. Evidently, the plan is feasible as well as constitutional.

The Democratic Boston Herald reports in its Washington correspondence that "Congressman John O. Whitehouse, Democrat, from the Poughkeepsie (N. Y.) district, says that Tilden is a fraud and he will do nothing to allow such a shyster to get into the White House. He says there is bad blood in the whole Tilden family, and he don't like bad blood in anybody."

There is a quiet unpacking of Democratic carpet-bags now going on all over the country, accompanied by curses not loud but deep.

The Senate left its chamber and [illegible] to the Hall of the House [illegible] the [illegible] Senate having [illegible] of the two Houses on objection submitted to the certificate of the State of Vermont such objection would be read

The Secretary having read the various objections as presented in joint meeting, Mr Edmunds submitted a resolution that the vote of Henry N Sollace as an Elector for the State of Vermont be counted with the other Electoral votes of that State objections thereto to the contrary notwithstanding

The resolution of Edmunds was unanimously agreed to—yeas 17

The Secretary was directed to notify the House and the Senate at 4 10 took a recess until 10 o'clock to-morrow

IN JOINT CONVENTION

The Decision in the South Carolina Case Objected to and the Houses Separate

The Senate appeared and took the usual seats. The decision of the Commission in the case of South Carolina having been read Mr Phillips of Mo presented the following objection

The undersigned Senators and [illegible] object to counting the votes cast by C C Bowen, D Wimsmith, T B Johnston, Timothy Hurley, W B Nash, Nelson Cooke and W F Myers alleged Electors of the State of South Carolina in conformity to the decision of the Electoral Commission and assign [illegible] therefor the following

First—Because no legal election was held in South Carolina on Nov 7th 1876, for President and Electors in compliance with section 3 article 8 of the Constitution thereof requiring the registration of all Electors of the State as a qualification to vote. The Senate then withdrew

Joint Convention Again The South Carolina Vote Declared for Hayes

At 2 [illegible] the Senate came into the Hall [illegible] the action of each House on the decision having been read, the presiding officer announced that the two Houses not concurring otherwise the electoral votes of South Carolina would be counted and they were thereupon declared by one of the Tellers as seven votes for Hayes and Wheeler

Pending that motion Mr Jones of Ky raised the point of that there was not a quorum of the Senate present, only 28 Senators having entered the Hall but the presiding officer paid no attention to the interruption and directed the Clerk to proceed with the reading, Jones contenting himself with a protest against the proceeding

Tennessee and Texas Counted

The votes of Tennessee 12 and Texas 8 for Tilden and Hendricks were then announced without objection

Vermont Hewitt's New Trickery—He says he has received another Certificate

Then came Vermont with 5 for Hayes and Wheeler. The certificate having been read in full Poppleton of Ohio rose to present objections to it, but first asked the presiding officer whether any other certificate had been received from Vermont than that which had been read. The presiding officer replied in the negative

Hewitt, of N Y stated that he held in his hand a package purporting to contain the Electoral votes of Vermont, which package had been delivered to him by express about the middle of December, and that with it came a letter stating that a similar package had been forwarded to the President of the Senate by mail. On learning to-day that no corresponding package had been received by the presiding officer he had tendered to him this package, and the presiding officer declined to receive it

The Presiding Officer Has Received no Such Certificate.

The Presiding Officer—The chair has stated that he has received but one certificate from Vermont. The chair also states that the law prohibits him from receiving after the first Thursday in February, as his duty is to receive, open and to have all read that have been received on that day

Springer Disturbs the Proceedings Again

Springer persisted in his efforts to have a resolution read, but the presiding officer was just as firm and unyielding in not permitting it to be read and he intimated that if the member from Illinois would not come to order, the services of the Sergeant-at-Arms would be called into requisition.

Springer's Objection

Finally Springer undertook to put his resolution in the shape of an objection, and proceedings were informally suspended to give him time to do so. After about a quarter of an hour spent in fixing it up, in consultation with others, the following objection was sent up, signed by Senator Merrimon and Representatives Springer and Hamilton of Ind

The undersigned Senators and members object to counting the votes of the State of Vermont for the reason that two returns or papers purporting to be returns of the Electoral vote of said State were forwarded to the President of the Senate, and that only one of said returns has been laid before the two Houses. The President of the Senate having stated that but one return has been received by him from said State a duplicate copy of one of said returns is herewith submitted for consideration of the Senate and House of Representatives

Accompanying the objection was the following telegram, which was read

Burlington, Vt, Feb 27, 1877

Samuel J Randall, Speaker of the House of Representatives

The certificate of Amos Aldrich as an Elector was deposited in this office Dec 13th

(Signed) B B SMALLEY

Clerk of the United States District Court of Vermont

Poppleton Presents Objections

Mr Poppleton of Ohio then presented two sets of objections to the vote of Henry N Sollace one of the Electors, on the ground that he was a Postmaster when when elected and that the law of Vermont did not authorize any appointment by the College of Electors to fill a vacancy caused by the absence of an Elector

The Houses Separate Again

The objections having been read, Springer demanded the reading of the duplicate return sent up with his objection

The Chair entirely ignored Springer's repeated demands and said The Senate will now retire to its own Chamber, in order that the two Houses may separately consider and decide upon the objections

Springer Ignored by Speaker Randall

As the Senators were withdrawing Springer called out that he now made the point of order that there being duplicate returns the case had now gone to the Electoral Commission and it could not be considered by the two Houses. No attention however was paid to it nor to a proposition made immediately afterwards by Mills of Texas that the House proceed to elect a President, the Speaker declaring that under the terms of the compromise agreement the House now at 7 20 took a recess until 10 o'clock to-morrow morning

House

The House took up the Sundry Civil Appropriation bill and agreed to all the amendments [illegible] Committee of the Whole and the bill passed

The hour of 12 having arrived the Speaker ruled that no legislative [illegible] commenced

The Infamous Filibusters Taking up Time

Immediately after the retirement of the Senate Springer of Ill, moved to take a recess until 10 o'clock to-morrow. The motion was rejected by the following vote Yeas 92, nays 170

As soon as the result was announced Steakley and O'Brien simultaneously moved motions to take a recess till 7 30 A M to-morrow

The Speaker promptly ruled the motion out of order. He would not entertain it

Mr Steakley appealed from the decision

Mr Wood of N Y moved to lay the appeal on the table

Mr Wilson of Iowa—The Chair need not entertain the appeal

Speaker—The Chair knows that, but entertains the appeal. The House might as well say now whether the Speaker is right or wrong

Springer—Is not the appeal debatable?

Speaker—It is not

Springer—I desire to give my reasons for sustaining the appeal

Speaker—Debate is not in order

O'Brien—I rise to a point of order

The Chair decided against him and when having attempted to speak Brown of Ky objected to debate. There was a determined effort made by Springer and O'Brien to be heard but the Chair would not hear them and they were greeted with derisive laughter

On the motion to lay O'Brien's appeal on the table the yeas and nays were ordered and resulted—yeas 184 nays [illegible]—so the appeal was laid on the table

Mr Wood moved that the House proceed to the consideration of the decision

Steakley Springer and O'Brien do the Dirty Work

Mr Steakley—I move that the House take a recess till 10 30 to-morrow morning

Speaker—The chair cannot entertain the motion. The Speaker also remarked that the decision of the Commission had been taken off by somebody

The decision having been restored the Clerk was proceeding to read it when he was interrupted by Mr Springer, who objected to the action of the Speaker in refusing to entertain a motion for recess. He said it was the duty of the chair to decide the motion out of order and that it was the privilege of any member to appeal from that ruling

The Speaker again refused to entertain the motion, citing his authority for the same

Mr O'Brien again rose to a parliamentary question and was greeted with cries of laughter

The Speaker intimated that these interruptions only had the effect of delaying business

The Clerk was again proceeding to read the decision when again he was interrupted by Mr Springer, who insisted that it was the duty of the chair to entertain his parliamentary motion submitted to rule upon it, and it was the privilege of the House to overrule that decision (Shouts of "sit down" "shut up" "order" etc

The Reading Concluded—The Reading of Testimony as called for by Phillips Refused

The Clerk then proceeded with the reading of the decision and of the objections thereto. When it was concluded Mr Phillips of Mo called for the reading of testimony

Mr Wood of N Y objected to the reading on the ground that there were 1260 printed pages of the report and testimony and that at the rate of ten pages an hour the reading would occupy at least five days and thus defeat (as was the object of the demand) the election altogether

The Speaker stated that under the rules he would submit to the House the question whether testimony should be read. He did so submit it, and a standing vote showed 90 ayes to 138 noes. Then the yeas and nays were taken resulting—yeas 87 nays 177

Walling, Franklin and Springer Continue Delaying Proceedings

As soon as the vote was announced Mr Walling of Ohio, moved to reconsider the vote.

Mr Wood of N Y moved to lay the motion to reconsider on the table and the yeas and nays were again ordered and Mr Wood's motion was agreed to—yeas 177 nays 77

Mr Walling then moved that parts one and two of the South Carolina testimony be read

The Speaker—The House has refused to have any of the testimony read, and therefore the motion is not in order

Mr Franklin of Mo, moved that the report of the South Carolina committee be read

The Speaker—It is not before the House, and can only be read by unanimous consent

Springer—It is a part of the papers that have been sent to the Clerk's desk

The Speaker—The House refused to hear them read

Springer—Non constat but the House may desire to have a portion of them read

Speaker—The gentleman from Illinois will not say that the House having refused to have the entire testimony read it is competent for the Chair to entertain a motion to read a portion of the testimony. The real difficulty in this matter is the law—The law binds the Chair. The Chair had nothing to do with the reporting of that law, but the Chair is bound to abide by its terms

Springer—To that I do not object.

Speaker—The Chair hopes not because the gentleman reported the law. (Laughter.)

Luttrell—Yes and he wishes now that he had not. (Laughter.)

Resolution offered Not to Count the Votes of South Carolina

After some further attempts at delay Mr. Cochran of Pa offered a resolution that the decision of the Electoral Commission on the votes of South Carolina be not sustained by the House and be not counted.

Hooker Opens the Debate

The discussion was opened by Hooker of Miss., who declared that in the case of South Carolina, as in the cases of Florida and Louisiana, the Commission had refused to perform the functions with which it had been invested had refused to take testimony on the subject matter, and that therefore the House was not bound by its action.

Mr. Lapham Defends the Commission

Lapham of New York, defended the action of the Commission, and said if those who were making opposition to the count imagined they would find in the people anything but condemnation of their action they are very much in error

Mr Goode of Virginia Opposes Delay

Goode, of Va declared unhesitatingly that the duty of the Democrats now in reference to the Commission was to do unto others as they would have others do unto them under like circumstances. They should accord to the Republican party what they would themselves have unanimously demanded if the decision had been in their favor. It would not only be unwise, but unmanly to attempt to reverse the decision of the Commission by any indirect method or by any clamorous complaints. It was the dictate of wisdom of policy, of manhood, of honor, to stand by the compact into which they had entered and to execute in good faith the law which they had made

Mr Lawrence Warns the Democracy

Mr Lawrence of Ohio, defended the action of the Commission and warned the Democratic side of the House of the danger of the doctrine that Congress had a right to go into a State investigate the [illegible] of an election and annul it. If that doctrine were to be established it might be carried into effect in the State of New York to defeat all the repeating and ballot box stuffing that prevails in the elections there

The Patriotic Franklin

Mr Franklin of Mo opposed the action of the Commission. It was to be consummated the second century of the Republic would open with a great political crime against the liberties of the American people and a usurper would be placed in the chief Executive chair of the Nation

Mr Banks Remarks

Mr Banks said that much misrepresentation had [illegible] the [illegible] to believe the political condition of South Carolina had been [illegible] that it was impossible to have any honest or just representation of the opinions of the people in the election. He had himself been [illegible] when he [illegible]

Mr Hoge of South Carolina gave an account of one of his experiences in the last campaign in that State to show the necessity of the presence of troops there. His story was laughed at and jeered on the Democratic side particularly when he announced that he represented John C Calhoun's District

The discussion was closed by Mr Leo[illegible] of New Jersey who spoke in favor of acquiescence

Proceeding to Vote

The House proceeded to vote on the resolution offered by Mr Cochran that the decision in the case of South Carolina be not sustained and that the vote be not counted

Mr Walling of Ohio, moved to add to the resolution the words [illegible]

Mr Jones of Ky [illegible]

Mr Hale of Me [illegible] a point of order against the amendment [illegible] under the Electoral law [illegible] question must be put but the Speaker overruled it

The question was first put [illegible] and it was [illegible] the resolution was announced

Efforts for a Compromise

While the vote was being taken efforts were made by members on both sides to arrive at some basis for a compromise [illegible] it was evident that hours would yet be consumed in the roll calling of the votes before the point of the joint meeting could be reached. No compromise [illegible] effect

A Compromise Effected and Cochran's Resolution Agreed to

Mr Walling of Ohio [illegible] the result of the vote ordering the main question was announced moved to reconsider that vote. Mr Wood of N Y, then offered a proposition of compromise which was at the suggestion of the speaker reduced to writing as follows. The member intends to withdraw pending to [illegible] House to come to a direct vote on the original resolution the Senate to be then invited to meet the House for the purpose of continuing the count, and that when the State of Vermont shall be reached and the two Houses separate, the House then to take a recess until 10 o'clock to-morrow. There was no objection made and the proposition was agreed to. Cochran's resolution that the vote of South Carolina be not counted was then adopted and the Senate notified

RUNAWAY. Yesterday Dr Briggs who was making a call on one of his patients, sent his man after Dr Brown The young man started and on reaching the office he left the horse standing while he went to the door, and the horse becoming frightened started and ran down through an alley very near the jail on to Kenduskeag stream, which he undertook to cross. As he neared the other side, the ice being broken up he went through into the water A crowd soon congregated and succeeded in getting a rope around the horse's neck and after a few minutes' hard work managed to get him out of the water on to the ice. With the exception of a few scratches and being somewhat chilled the horse was uninjured.

City Hall was crowded with a brilliant gathering of young and old last evening the galleries and platform as well as the main floor being filled with guests. The Hall was very elaborately and handsomely decorated with flags, pictures [illegible] festooned bunting, and two chandeliers were added to the illuminating features. At the upper end of the Hall over the stage was the motto "Helpfulness" and on the front of the gallery over the entrance the motto "Charity." Andrews Orchestra occupied the centre of the stage and on one side was a decorated booth for the disposal of [illegible] and on the other several ladies presided at a flower table covered with dolls, bouquets of fresh buds and blossoms. A large number of the ladies were attired in picturesque costumes of calico and many of the gentlemen wore neckties of the same material. The exercises were opened by brief and appropriate remarks by Dr A C Hamlin and sets were soon formed for the miscellaneous dancing which went on merrily until 9 o'clock. A promenade was then formed and a number of young misses proceeded to distribute Souvenirs to each person present. DR SCHENCK'S STANDARD REMEDIES

The standard remedies for all diseases of the lungs are SCHENCK'S PULMONIC SYRUP, SCHENCK'S SEA WEED TONIC and SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS [illegible]

To these three medicines Dr J H Schenck of Philadelphia owes his unrivalled success in the treatment of pulmonary diseases

The Pulmonic Syrup ripens the morbid matter in the lungs, nature throws it off by an easy expectoration for when the phlegm or matter is ripe a slight cough will throw it off the patient has rest and the lungs begin to heal

To enable the Pulmonic Syrup to do this Schenck's Mandrake Pills and Schenck's Sea Weed Tonic must be freely used to cleanse the stomach and liver. Schenck's Mandrake Pills act on the liver removing all obstructions relax the gall bladder, the bile starts freely and the liver is soon relieved

Schenck's Sea Weed Tonic is a gentle stimulant and alterative the alkali of which it is composed mixes with the food and prevents souring. It assists the digestion by toning up the stomach to a healthy condition so that the food and the Pulmonic Syrup will make good blood then the lungs heal and the patient will surely get well if care is taken to prevent fresh cold

All who wish to consult Dr Schenck, either personally or by letter can do so at his principal office corner of SIXTH and ARCH STS, Philadelphia, every Monday

Schenck's Medicines are sold by all druggists throughout the country

The Weekly is one of the best illustrated papers of the day that in the essential characteristics of a newspaper is indeed just as much a newspaper as the Tribune itself.—Brooklyn Union.

The illustrations in Harper's Weekly are of a character to excite more than a passing interest in questions of public importance. They are often very impressive pictorial lessons.—Evening Telegram, New York.

Harper's Weekly is a first-class political newspaper, as well as a first-class illustrated newspaper. It is conducted with signal ability, and is one of the most influential political journals of the country.—Chicago Tribune.

Harper's Weekly is a complete model of what a first-class illustrated newspaper should be. It is full of the best pictures of the week, and of such reading matter as it takes a crowd of brilliant, entertaining, intelligent writers to produce.—Cincinnati Commercial.
